BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23—In the tense diplomatic situation caused by Russia's sudden withdrawal of its top ambassadors from Washington and London, Under Secretary of State Sumner Welles today mysteriously left the capital for an unannounced destination.

The state department declined to divulge the reason for Welles' absence, which came at a time when Secretary of State Cordell Hull also is out of Washington attending the Roosevelt-Churchill war strategy conference in Canada.

Only illness or highly important affairs of state would require absence from Washington of both the secretary and his next ranking officer, the under secretary, at the same time. The state department spokesman said that nothing could be disclosed about Welles' trip except that he was going to be away from Washington for a few days.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23—The possibility of a separate Russian peace with Germany lay today behind the Soviet union's sudden move in withdrawing ambassador Maxim Litvinov from Washington and Ambassador Ivan Maisky from London, in the opinion of high diplomatic quarters.

Such a move, if it came to pass, would be a major disaster to Allied hopes of an early victory against the Axis in Europe, these quarters declared.

The Soviet union's apparent sudden move broke like a thunderclap over the week end in the capitals of the two English-speaking democracies.

An unrecurrent of uneasiness about Russia's attitude toward the conduct of the war by the United States and Great Britain in Europe had, however, gripped Washington for weeks. Washington officials frankly have not known what Russia might do, and have simply held out hope for the best.

Great Corn
Crop Seen
For CountyProduction Will At Least
Equal 1942 Figures,
Farm Leaders Say

A field corn crop that may develop into a bumper is being watched carefully by Pickaway county farmers as harvest season approaches. Agricultural leaders who are usually accurate in their predictions say that the 1943 field corn crop will at least equal the record crop of 1942.

The number of acres planted to field corn this year is somewhat above 1942's approximately 65,000, but, because the planting season which was marked by rain caused some farmers to change their planting plans, the number of acres in field corn this year is not known.

Field corn is being watched closer than ever since a great corn supply will be needed this fall when 20 percent more brood sows are expected to farrow than did last fall. A bumper corn supply will be needed to feed the pigs which will be produced on Pickaway county farms.

The feed supply at the present time is short, much corn having been shipped out of the county.

Farm authorities say that even higher ground, most of it clay, is producing a splendid field corn crop this year. In some instances the clay ground is growing corn that will rival corn grown in the richer lowlands.

Blight and corn borer have added to woes of farmers in some areas, but loss is expected to be much less than was expected earlier when the borer appeared to be in almost all fields to some extent.

In most parts of the county the field corn harvest will be from two to three weeks later than usual because of the late planting season. However, several farmers have corn now that can be cut.

Sweet corn canning is progressing in Pickaway county at a rapid rate. All three of the county's corn-processing plants, Winorr and Esmeralda in Circleville and Crites in Ashville, are stepping up operations. The peak, however, will not be reached for at least another week or 10 days.

GAMBLERS MAY

GARBAGE SCOWS

NEW YORK, Aug. 23—New York City's gamblers may soon be working on city garbage scows and dumps.

Mayor F. H. LaGuardia in his weekly radio broadcast revealed the police are under orders to arrest all known gamblers and take them to U. S. Employment Service offices to register for war jobs under the War Manpower Commission's "work or fight" order.

The mayor pointed out that if war jobs aren't available for the gamblers the city can use them on garbage scows and dumps.

HELPLESS AND HURT IN HOME

Miss Laura B. Martin, 128 West Union street, was taken to Berger hospital Monday at 9:30 a. m. for treatment for a possible hip fracture and a stroke. Miss Martin, who lived alone, was found lying on the floor of her downstairs bedroom between the bed and a door. How long she had been there is not certain.

Miss Martin was found by her brother, George, Lancaster pike, and T. W. Brown, who lives next door. She had not been seen by anyone since last Monday. Her brother, who had called at the home last Tuesday, and her neighbors thought she might have gone to Columbus to visit relatives. When the brother was in Columbus Sunday he found that she had not been there, so he became uneasy. He and Mr. Brown forced their way into the home to find Miss Martin.

ITALIANS SEEK TO FORCE PEACEPowerful Underground Group
Aims At Overthrow Of King And Badoglio

CHIASSO. (On The Italo-Swiss Border) — Aug. 23 — A powerful Italian underground movement, re-born with the ouster of Benito Mussolini and strengthened by the Allied victory in Sicily, today is conducting a popularly-supported campaign seeking the overthrow of King Victor Emmanuel and the government of Marshal Pietro Badoglio.

The underground, according to travellers reaching this Swiss town from Italy, is composed of coalition of the Communist party with two other radical parties, the Liberal Radical and the Christian Socialist.

This coalition, it was declared, is responsible for instigating a new and widespread outbreak of strikes and anti-war demonstrations throughout the important war-manufacturing region of northern Italy.

Despite wholesale arrests, the anti-administration group, through the distribution of thousands of pamphlets in northern Italy, is pressing a widely-acclaimed campaign demanding immediate Italian surrender and the expulsion of German troops from Italy, these sources said.

Unless the Badoglio government seeks an armistice with the United Nations before Italy is invaded, it was reported, the underground workers will continue fostering general strikes and anti-war demonstrations until either the government gives in to their demands or is supplanted by a government that will initiate peace negotiations.

JAPS AND HUNS
AT ODDS OVER
BEST RETREAT

NEW YORK, Aug. 23—Japanese and German propagandists were at odds today over which Axis withdrawal was "the world's greatest military achievement," abandonment of Kiska by the evacuation of Sicily.

The Tokyo radio, in a broadcast reported today to OWI, boasted: "Evacuation of the Japanese garrison from Kiska without the loss of a single man was held by military commentators as without parallel in world military history."

Last Tuesday the German DNE News Agency claimed evacuation of part of the Axis forces in Sicily was "an achievement without precedent."

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Klerman

Well, a week ago Saturday, Chester Bowles told the East it could expect more gasoline in two weeks, and today, by golly, New York hasn't got any!

If this gas situation isn't the screwiest, craziest, messed up, non-explainable, triple-ply stupidity of the war I'd like to know what is.

It's the most consistently bungled, mishandled, misjudged mess of them all.

The wonder of it is that there are any automobiles on the roads at all.

And if the black market was knocked off there'd be fewer than there are.

Nobody could deliberately set out to take every automobile in the East off the roads and do half as well as this pilsated administration of the gas situation has done.

Give a high school boy the figures on our daily production of gasoline and the needs of the armed services and he could tell you in two minutes what's left for the civilian. Washington can't.

Thought for the day: Where's Barney Baruch?

JAPS FINALLY TELL WHY THEY
QUIT ALEUTIANS

NEW YORK, Aug. 23 — A few hours after telling the Japanese that Kiska had been evacuated only because it had served its purpose by covering construction of new fortifications in the Kurile islands, the Tokyo radio today admitted American bombings of the garrison and food shortages had made Japan's hold on Kiska "difficult beyond imagination."

A Japanese naval correspondent was quoted as complaining that during Jap occupation of the Aleutian island American planes attacked "more than 10 times daily" while the garrison also was pounded by American warships.

63,500,000 HOLD JOBS

NEW YORK, Aug. 23—Approximately 63,500,000 persons were employed throughout the nation at the end of June, the National Industrial Conference board reported today. The N. I. C. Makes Demand On 23
Congressmen

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 23—The Ohio Federation of Labor will demand that Ohio's 23 congressmen and two senators support a revision of the "little steel" wage formula, Lyden declared today.

Lyden will preside over the week-long 59th annual convention of the federation, which gets underway today in the Neil House.

The 700 delegates will discuss anti-strike legislation price roll-backs, wage schedules and other war-time policies vitally affecting labor.

"This convention undoubtedly will adopt resolutions demanding the revision of the 'little steel' wage formula," Lyden said.

"We do not intend to stop there. The OFL will contact each of the state's 23 congressmen and Senators Taft and Burton and demand that they support a revision of this unfair formula."

The little steel formula is based on a war labor board ruling in the Mahoning valley steel dispute that wages can be increased only 15 percent of what they were in 1941. Labor contends that this formula ignores the skyrocketing cost of living, the OFL president said.

"The congressmen also may be contacted and asked to support any other measures approved by resolution of this convention," Lyden said.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23—War Manpower Chairman Paul V. McNutt warned today that from now until July, 1944 a "rock-bottom minimum" of 2,600,000 persons must transfer to essential war jobs.

Of this number, he said, 2,100,000 persons must shift from their present to essential jobs by Jan. 1, and the remainder must transfer during the first six months of 1944.

QUEBEC, Que., Aug. 23—Methods of intensifying the war against Japan appear today to be one of the major—if not the major—reason behind the Roosevelt-Churchill meeting at Quebec.

Events of the last 48 hours have served as the only hint so far to the nature of the discussions at the citadel and the Chateau Frontenac that have been going on for nearly two weeks.

First in importance is the Quebec announcement that the Aleutian island of Kiska had been retaken by United States and Canadian forces after severe aerial and warship shelling of the island had forced the Nippon garrison to withdraw from their last foot-hold in the Western hemisphere.

Second is the appearance on the scene of the conferences of T. V. Soong, Chinese foreign minister, and second only to Generalissimo Chiang Kai Shek in importance in China.

HERO OF WAKE
WRITES FROM PRISON CAMP

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23—A poignant, heart-rending note from a Japanese prison camp served today to remind the nation that the matchless courage of U. S. Marines on Wake Island still lives.

The letter was sent by Lieut. Col. James P. S. Devereux, Marine commander on Wake, to his 76-year-old mother, Mrs. Annie S. Devereux, of Chevy Chase, Md. The letterhead was marked "Shanghai war-prisoner's camp" and was dated Jan. 3.

In a matter-of-fact, yet eloquent, tone, the massive bespectacled, fervent faith of a man who had messaged, "Send us more Japs," when Wake was falling, then survived capture by the enemy, and finally received unmistakable knowledge that his wife, Mary, had died while he was in prison.

"Dearest mother: this is my third letter home. The first was to Mary. And the second to Mrs. Welch (his mother-in-law) after receiving the news of Mary," he wrote.

The note asks that relatives of several war prisoners be informed of their well-being. Undoubtedly censored or even dictated, it also contains several interesting diversions.

At one point, it says that "letters and pictures would be gratefully received," and later asks for "an hundred dollars." Moreover, Devereux relates that he holds rosary on Sundays "when we are not working." Under the Geneva convention, officers taken prisoner are not supposed to work.

Cheered with the possible news her son is safe and well, Mrs. Devereux said, "I pray to God I'll live to see the day my son returns home." Characteristically brief, the gallant commander expressed the same sentiments: "Trusting the war will be over shortly and I'll be able to be with you all again soon; my love to Paddy (his son) and everyone."

The full significance of the Allied victory in Tunisia will be disclosed only at the conclusion of the next phase of operations in Europe, French General Henri Honore Giraud declared today at the close of a two-day visit to now historic Sicilian battlefronts.

Greeted at this base by Maj. Gen. Omar Nelson Bradley and Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, the French commander smilingly complimented the American forces' part in "a brilliant victory whose proportions none of us can properly estimate until the next stage of operations is over—only then will its true magnitude become apparent."

Yesterday Gen. Giraud visited the headquarters of Gen. Sir Harold R. L. G. Alexander, field commander of Allied ground forces, where he conferred also with Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark, American Fifth army commander. The three discussed the future role of Gen. Giraud's 300,000 French troops, now ready for action after being equipped with American material.

DRAFT DEFIANCE

Although notice was sent to Ray J. O'Donnell, assistant U. Selective Service headquarters certified names of the Grubb brothers to O'Donnell after the brothers failed to heed a five-day warning given them by the board that they were delinquent.

Both had been designated to help fill the August draft call.

The youths, when action is taken, will probably go before Judge Mell G. Underwood, Columbus, for preliminary hearing as draft dodgers.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23 — The navy disclosed today that American and Canadian troops had made a landing on Segua island in the Aleutians indicating that the Allies are combating the Aleutians island by island in an attempt to run down Japs who escaped from Kiska.

By International News Service
Nazi abandonment of Kharkov, key bastion dominating the entire southern front in Russia, was conceded today by the German high command.

Evacuation of the Nazi garrison after 17 days of furious fighting during which Soviet armies virtually surrounded the city and penetrated its suburbs, was announced by the Berlin radio. The broadcast quoted an official communique which said evacuation was completed last night after all military installations had been destroyed.

Russian possession of the Ukrainian steel metropolis and railroad center provides the Red army with a vital springboard threatening remaining German troops in the Donets basin and the Caucasus and removes a 16-month German menace to Russian defenses all the way from Moscow to the Caucasus.

Last front-line reports to Moscow said new Russian advances on the besieged city had narrowed to 13 miles the Germans' escape corridor to the southwest.

Reds Open New Drive
The fall of Kharkov, climaxing a victorious Russian drive which saw liberation of the bastions of Orel and Belgorod, overshadowed latest news from Moscow on developments on the blazing Russian front. The Soviet midnight communique announced a new Soviet offensive in the Donets and Mius river fronts southeast of the city, and new advances towards Bryansk on the north.

Meanwhile the double-pronged Allied aerial war on Axis Europe from the West and from the South continued with new heavy attacks on Germany by Britain-based bombers and pulverizing attacks on Italy by Allied warplanes from North Africa.

A dispatch received in London from Allied headquarters in North Africa said American twin-motored Marauder bombers heavily attacked the port of Salerno in southwestern Italy yesterday in continuation of the aerial softening-up of that country for the expected Allied invasion blow. Thirty-four Axis fighter planes which rose to meet the raiders were reported shot down. A Rome communique conceded considerable damage to Salerno, which lies 25 miles southeast of Naples. The Nazi-controlled Paris radio said Naples also was attacked last night.

Police Sgt. Maurice Herbert who arrested Bender on the request of Spencer Drayton, head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Chicago, quoted him as saying:

"I know my draft board in Ashland, Pa., classed me as a delinquent last year. I was just afraid of being killed, so I decided to stay delinquent."

Knox On Way

Third is the announced fact that navy Secretary Frank Knox will join the conferences tomorrow.

These three developments that had done much to draw aside the curtain that has shrouded the meetings in secrecy are seen to mean only one thing—that Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill are (Continued on Page Two)

HERO OF WAKE WRITES FROM PRISON CAMP

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23—A poignant, heart-rending note from a Japanese prison camp served today to remind the nation that the matchless courage of U. S. Marines on Wake Island still lives.

The letter was sent by Lieut. Col. James P. S. Devereux, Marine commander on Wake, to his 76-year-old mother, Mrs. Annie S. Devereux, of Chevy Chase, Md. The letterhead was marked "Shanghai war-prisoner's camp" and was dated Jan. 3.

In a matter-of-fact, yet eloquent, tone, the missive bespoke the fervent faith of a man who had messaged, "Send us more Japs," when Wake was falling, then survived capture by the enemy, and finally received unmistakable knowledge that his wife, Mary, had died while he was in prison.

"Dearest mother: This is my third letter home. The first was to Mary. And the second to Mrs. Welch (his mother-in-law) after receiving the news of Mary," he wrote.

The note asks that relatives of several war prisoners be informed of their well-being. Undoubtedly censored or even dictated, it also contains several interesting diversions.

At one point, it says that "letters and pictures would be gratefully received," and later asks for "an hundred dollars." Moreover, Devereux relates that he holds rosary on Sundays "when we are not working." Under the Geneva convention, officers taken prisoner are not supposed to work.

Cheered with the possible news her son is safe and well, Mrs. Devereux said, "I pray to God I'll live to see the day my son returns home." Characteristically brief, the gallant commander expressed the same sentiments: "Trusting the war will be over shortly and I'll be able to be with you all again soon; my love to Paddy (his son) and everyone."

Vital Brenner Pass

BRENNER PASS, in the Alps, looms importantly in Allied operations in Europe. It is on the single track railroad through there that Hitler supplies his troops in northern Italy. If bombers can block this pass, the Nazis will be faced with a retreat to the mountains. (International)

GIRAUD PRAISES YANK FIGHTERS

General Says Significance Of Tunisian Victory Not Yet Revealed

AN ALLIED AIR BASE IN SICILY, Aug. 19—(Delayed)—The full significance of the Allied victory in Tunisia will be disclosed only at the conclusion of the next phase of operations in Europe, French General Henri Honore Giraud declared today at the close of a two-day visit to now historic Sicilian battlefields.

Greeted at this base by Maj. Gen. Omar Nelson Bradley and Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, the French commander smilingly complimented the American forces' part in "a brilliant victory whose proportions none of us can properly estimate until the next stage of operations is over—only then will its true magnitude become apparent."

Yesterday Gen. Giraud visited the headquarters of Gen. Sir Harold R. L. G. Alexander, field commander of Allied ground forces, where he conferred also with Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark, American Fifth army commander. The three discussed the future role of Gen. Giraud's 300,000 French troops, now ready for action after being equipped with American material.

GRUBBS STILL FREE DESPITE DRAFT DEFIANCE

Although notice was sent to Ray J. O'Donnell, assistant U. S. district attorney, last Wednesday afternoon that James Matthew Grubb, 22, and his brother, John Wade Grubb, 29, were draft delinquents since they had refused to report for induction, no action has been taken yet concerning the two Circleville Jehovah's Witnesses.

Selective Service headquarters certified names of the Grubb brothers to O'Donnell after the brothers failed to heed a five-day warning given them by the board that they were delinquent.

Both had been designated to help fill the August draft call.

The youths, when action is taken, will probably go before Judge Mel G. Underwood, Columbus, for preliminary hearing as draft dodgers.

RUSSIANS TAKE KEY BASTION OF SOUTHERN FRONT

Important Jap Base Of Salamaua About To Fall To Allies

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23 — The navy disclosed today that American and Canadian troops had made a landing on Segula island in the Aleutians indicating that the Allies are combing the Aleutians island by island in an attempt to run down Japs who escaped from Kiska.

Nazi abandonment of Kharkov, key bastion dominating the entire southern front in Russia, was conceded today by the German high command.

Evacuation of the Nazi garrison after 17 days of furious fighting during which Soviet armies virtually surrounded the city and penetrated its suburbs, was announced by the Berlin radio. The broadcast quoted an official communique which said evacuation was completed last night after all military installations had been destroyed.

Russian possession of the Ukrainian steel metropolis and railroad center provides the Red army with a vital springboard threatening remaining German troops in the Donets basin and the Caucasus and removes a 16-month German menace to Russian defenses all the way from Moscow to the Caucasus.

Last front-line reports to Moscow said new Russian advances on the besieged city had narrowed to 13 miles the Germans' escape corridor to the southwest.

Reds Open New Drive

The fall of Kharkov, climaxing a victorious Russian drive which saw liberation of the bastions of Orel and Belgorod, overshadowed latest news from Moscow on developments on the blazing Russian front. The Soviet midnight communique announced a new Soviet offensive in the Donets and Mius river fronts southeast of the city and new advances towards Bryansk on the north.

Meanwhile the double-pronged Allied aerial war on Axis Europe from the West and from the South continued with new heavy attacks on Germany by Britain-based bombers and pulverizing attacks on Italy by Allied warplanes from North Africa.

A dispatch received in London from Allied headquarters in North Africa said American twin-motored Marauder bombers heavily attacked the port of Salerno in southwestern Italy yesterday in continuation of the aerial softening-up of that country for the expected Allied invasion blow. Thirty-four Axis fighter planes which rose to meet the raiders were reported shot down. A Rome communique conceded considerable damage to Salerno, which lies 25 miles southeast of Naples. The Nazi-controlled Paris radio said Naples also was attacked last night.

Allied headquarters in the Middle East today announced a raid on the port of Cotrone, in south-

DRAFT DODGER TELLS TRUTH ABOUT FLIGHT

JOLIET, Ill., Aug. 23—It wasn't that he had any scruples against war, he just didn't like the idea of being shot at, Fred J. Bender explained today following his arrest as a draft evader.

Police Sgt. Maurice Herbert who arrested Bender on the request of Spencer Drayton, head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Chicago, quoted him as saying:

"I know my draft board in Ashland, Pa., classed me as a delinquent last year. I was just afraid of being killed, so I decided to stay delinquent."

HUGE CROWDS PARTICIPATE IN CAMP MEETING

Gas And Tire Rationing Having Little Effect On Attendance

TABERNACLE CROWDED

Rev. E. A. Keaton Selected Superintendent Of Council Churches

Huge crowds participated in Sunday sessions of the Ohio Council of Churches of Christ in Christian Union held at the camp ground, East Ohio street, with camp meeting officials indicating that rationing of gasoline and tires will not hinder the religious services to any great extent.

The huge tabernacle at the camp ground, which seats 4,000, was crowded for the Sunday evening service. Hundreds of others were in the campground at the time, many listening to services from outside the tabernacle.

The Rev. E. A. Keaton of Columbus, moderator of the camp meeting, was elected Saturday as general superintendent of all the churches of the Council, numbering more than 100. The election marked a precedent for the church, since no superintendent has ever been elected. The Rev. Mr. Keaton, who fills the post of the church in Columbus, will not start his new duties until after the next year. He will preach at his Columbus charge during the next fiscal year, starting his new work at the close of the 1944 camp meeting.

All members of the board of trustees of the denomination were re-elected Saturday for another year.

The Rev. Ross Hayslip of Circleville, who is serving as press representative at the campground, reported Monday on the amount of food bought for the camp meeting to date. The treasurer's report shows $998.60 paid for ice cream; $129.75 for vegetables; $1,390 for groceries and meats; $97.88 for potatoes; $517 for buns, and $103 for the campground water bill to date.

These amounts were paid for food served in the restaurant and in the dining hall.

The session continues for the remainder of the week, evangelistic services being planned each night with outstanding preachers and song leaders participating. The Council session, which is conducted by leaders of the church organization, was concluded Sunday with the camp meeting proper getting under way then.

COLUMBUS MAN FINED

Vernon A. Pope, 38, of 131 West Starr avenue, Columbus, paid a fine of $50 and costs and was released Sunday from county jail after his arrest at 12:40 a. m. for having physical control of an automobile when under the influence of liquor. Pope had parked his car partly on the berm and partly in the highway north of Circleville, Deputy Vern Pontious charged. Pope's hearing was before Squire B. T. Hedger.

CHARGED AS DRUNKS

Usual number of intoxication charges were filed during the week end in the court of Mayor Ben H. Gordon. Among persons cited into court were Robert Reed, 43, Circleville Route 2; Fred Bevins, 19, Xenia, who posted $5 bond; Joseph Bevins, Route 2, freed on similar bond; Chauncey were bills of smaller denominations, freed under $10 bond, and Elliott Webb, 44, High street, freed under $5 bond.

MORE YANKS ACROSS

LONDON, Aug. 23—The British Press Association today reported the recent arrival of thousands of additional American troops in England, including air force personnel and Negro detachments, after an uneventful crossing of the Atlantic.

HUGE CROWDS PARTICIPATE IN CAMP MEETING

Gas And Tire Rationing Having Little Effect On Attendance

TABERNACLE CROWDED

Rev. E. A. Keaton Selected Superintendent Of Council Churches

Huge crowds participated in Sunday sessions of the Ohio Council of Churches of Christ in Christian Union held at the camp ground, East Ohio street, with camp meeting officials indicating that rationing of gasoline and tires will not hinder the religious services to any great extent.

The huge tabernacle at the camp ground, which seats 4,000, was crowded for the Sunday evening service. Hundreds of others were in the campground at the time, many listening to services from outside the tabernacle.

The Rev. E. A. Keaton of Columbus, moderator of the camp meeting, was elected Saturday as general superintendent of all the churches of the Council, numbering more than 100. The election marked a precedent for the church, since no superintendent has ever before headed the entire denomination. The Rev. Mr. Keaton, who fills the pupil of the church in Columbus, will not start his new duties until after the next year. He will preach at the Columbus charge during the next fiscal year, starting his new work at the close of the 1944 camp meeting.

All members of the board of trustees of the denomination were reelected Saturday for another year.

The Rev. Ross Hayslip of Circleville, who is serving as press representative at the campground, reported Monday on the amount of food bought for the camp meeting to date. The treasurer's report shows $998.60 paid for ice cream; $129.75 for vegetables; $1,390 for groceries and meats; $97.88 for potatoes; $517 for buns, and $103 for the campground water bill to date.

These amounts were paid for food served in the restaurant and in the dining hall.

The session continues for the remainder of the week, evangelistic services being planned each night with outstanding preachers and song leaders participating.

The Council session, which is conducted by leaders of the church organization, was concluded Sunday with the camp meeting proper getting under way then.

COLUMBUS MAN FINED

Vernon A. Pope, 38, of 131 West Starr avenue, Columbus, paid a fine of $50 and costs and was released Sunday from county jail after his arrest at 12:40 a. m. for having physical control of an automobile when under the influence of liquor. Pope had parked his car partly on the berm and partly in the highway north of Circleville, Deputy Vern Pontious charged. Pope's hearing was before Squire B. T. Hedges.

CHARGED AS DRUNKS

Usual number of intoxication charges were filed during the week end in the court of Mayor Ben H. Gordon. Among persons cited into court were Robert Reed, 43, Circleville Route 2; Fred Bevins, 19, Xenia, who posted $5 bond; Joseph Bevins, Route 2, freed on similar bond; Chauncey were bills of smaller denominations, freed under $10 bond, and Elliott Webb, 44, High street, freed under $5 bond.

VICTORY PARLEY BREWS TROUBLE FOR JAPANESE

Appearance Of Chinese Foreign Minister Lends Credence To Rumors

deep in study of the Pacific phase of the war, and that decisions on offensive blows to be meted out to the Japanese aggressors have been reached.

T. V. Soong's presence at the conferences is of the deepest significance, as he would be at the avenue through which any communication with China's war leader would be carried. Presidential Secretary Stephen T. Early has disclosed that Soong came to Quebec on the invitation of President Roosevelt, and obviously, there are important matters concerning Pacific strategy to be talked over between the heads of the eastern and western members of the United Nations.

Knox's appearance on the conference scene undoubtedly will be the signal for intensive discussion on the naval phases of a Pacific offensive, and undoubtedly will foreshadow a stepping up of naval warfare in and around Japanese dominated waters, prior to any major move toward the island stronghold itself.

Blows In Making
WASHINGTON, Aug. 23—Allied forces in the Pacific were deployed today to deliver triple-hammered punches against the Japs as the enemy evacuation of Kiska without a fight released fighting ships and men for other war fronts where the Nipponese are entrenched.

It was generally believed in Washington that the American and Canadian landing on Kiska was only a part—and a small part—of a coming offensive against the Japs. For days, there has been a tense air of expectancy in military circles in the capital, but where the next blow will fall on Tojo was a closely guarded secret.

While the navy reported that only light surface units were engaged in the bombardment of Jap-held Kiska before it fell, the recapture of that Aleutian outpost freed those task forces for other jobs, perhaps to make lightning thrusts at enemy outposts to keep the Japs off balance until a major punch can be driven into Japan's bulging stomach.

Threat To Japs

Retaking of Kiska also gave the Allies an unbroken chain of air bases across the Aleutian stepping stones to within some 750 miles of important Jap bases in the Kuriles, within range of U. S. Flying Fortresses and Liberators. Too, planes which had carried out 106 air bombardments against Kiska in the first 14 days of August can now be assigned other targets.

There was still speculation in Washington on how the enemy was able to flee Kiska. It was believed that the Japs had a garrison of between 8,500 and 10,000 men there. The navy said it was possible that the Nipponese slipped out under the cover of heavy fogs, now prevalent in Alaskan waters at this time of the year. And whether the evacuation forces of the enemy reached home safely is another story that remains to be fully told by the navy.

REV. RAMSEY REASSIGNED TO CIRCLEVILLE CHURCH

The Rev. W. D. Ramsey, South Washington street, pastor of the Circleville Calvary Evangelical church for the last four years, has been reassigned to the local charge for another year. The pastor who has been attending the church's conference in Cleveland has not yet returned home.

The Rev. Mr. Ramsey is president of the Pickaway county Ministerial association.

FINNISH PEACE OFFER MADE TO SURGING REDS

LONDON, Aug. 23—A six-point Finnish peace offer to Russia was handed Saturday to Arthur Deakin, member of the British transport General Workers' Union now in Stockholm, the London Daily Mail said today.

The paper, in a Stockholm dispatch, said Deakin received Finland's peace terms to the Soviet Union from Eero Vuori, Finnish trade union chief.

ITALIANS SEEK TO FORCE PEACE

estimated that 400,000 German troops now are in Italy, and the underground movement was said to be securing widespread Italian support to its demand that these troops be ejected from Italy, either by the Italian government or by acceptance of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's offer to free Italy of the Germans.

Italian newspapers reaching the Swiss border indicated that Badoglio himself, although his hands may now be tied, possibly subscribes to some of the sentiments of the underground. The new prime minister's first objective, the papers declared, is to "get Italy out of the war in order to prevent the country from becoming the scene of a gigantic Allied-German battle."

The Italian press also was reported to have expressed the belief that the present Allied staff conferences in Quebec will decide on an immediate invasion of Italy. (An Axis propaganda radio calling itself "radio liberation," purporting to be broadcasting from North Africa but identified in London as "a well-known mischief maker" planted by the Nazis in France, reported that the invasion of Italy already has been launched. The radio said "considerable" Allied forces landed at dawn Saturday on the eastern Calabrian coast in southern Italy as well as on the island of Crete. London declared the broadcast was just another "fishing" expedition to draw forth Allied denials which might give a clue to future United Nations intentions.)

Removal of the two ranking Soviet envoys took from Washington and London the two chief Soviet exponents of full cooperation with the United States and Britain.

Russ Pave Way
In recent weeks the Soviet government has built up a careful case for its weekend move. Repeated articles in Pravda and other Russian government-controlled publications have complained bitterly against the failure of the United States and Britain to open a second front in western Europe.

The articles have pointed out that Soviet Russia has borne the full brunt of the war in Europe against Germany, taking colossal losses in more than two years of war. They have termed the Allied landings in North Africa, the conquest of Sicily and the Allied bombings of Germany as mere pinpricks and have demanded a landing in force in western Europe that would divert at least sixty German divisions from the eastern front.

ASHVILLE MAN JAILED AS PROPERTY DESTROYER

The deputy said Summerfield went home intoxicated, and started to break up his furniture. One piece of furniture at a time was taken into the yard to be destroyed. Pontious said Summerfield had tossed his radio into the yard and had failed to damage it enough to satisfy himself. Summerfield went into the yard and

EARLY VICTORY IMPOSSIBLE IF SOVIETS QUIT

Withdrawing Of Litvinoff Hits U. S. And England Like Thunderclap

moval of the Soviet Union's top diplomatic envoys at a moment when President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill have been holding a war strategy conference in Quebec, these officials maintained a tight-lipped silence. They hoped, however, that the full import of Russia's move may mean only an expression of Russia's displeasure over its contention that the Allies have failed to open a real "second front" in Europe.

The withdrawal of Litvinoff and Maisky left the United States and Great Britain without representation by any top ranking Soviet diplomat. Andrei A. Gromyko, 35-years-old, who has been counselor of embassy in Washington, was elevated to the rank of Ambassador. Maisky was replaced in London by the Soviet's representative in Canada.

Removal of the two ranking Soviet envoys took from Washington and London the two chief Soviet exponents of full cooperation with the United States and Britain.

Russ Pave Way
In recent weeks the Soviet government has built up a careful case for its weekend move. Repeated articles in Pravda and other Russian government-controlled publications have complained bitterly against the failure of the United States and Britain to open a second front in western Europe.

The articles have pointed out that Soviet Russia has borne the full brunt of the war in Europe against Germany, taking colossal losses in more than two years of war. They have termed the Allied landings in North Africa, the conquest of Sicily and the Allied bombings of Germany as mere pinpricks and have demanded a landing in force in western Europe that would divert at least sixty German divisions from the eastern front.

Heavy Hun Loss
Only this week end, Russia announced that its armies, in the Summer's fighting alone, had inflicted 1,000,000 casualties on the Germans. An earlier announcement claimed Russia had taken a toll of 6,400,000 German casualties in the two previous years of fighting.

Considerable concern had been aroused in both Washington and London recently over Russia's establishment of a free German committee and feelers on the Russian radio beamed to Germany for a peace with Germany.

These feelers asserted that a peace could be made between Russia and Germany without

TO BE PROVIDED CITY'S STREETS

A street resurfacing project which will see many of Circleville's thoroughfares given old treatment was outlined Monday by Service Director Clarence Helvering after he received approval from the War Production Board to buy the tar needed. Helvering is permitted to buy up to 28,000 gallons of treatment tar.

First street to be worked on will be Pleasant where the roadway is in bad condition. Since it is one of the principal routes to Berger hospital it is first on the treatment list. Work is expected to start within the next two weeks.

Other roadways which will be treated are Hayward avenue, Mound, Pickaway, Walnut, Union, Washington and Clinton streets and Reber avenue.

GIRAUD PRAISES YANK FIGHTERS

Marshal Viscount Gort at Malta en route.)

During his conversation with Gens. Bradley and Patton, Giraud asked how his French Goums had fought. The Goums, celebrated troops from French North Africa, participated with American Maj. Gen. Lucien King Truscott's third division in the capture of Messina. Gen. Patton answered:

"They threw the fear of God into Germans and Italians alike."

Later Gen. Giraud visited the Goums, five of whom he decorated.

The French general, asked if he had enjoyed his visit to the United States, replied: "Yes, the trip was a great success from every point of view. Please express, through the American press, my appreciation of the cordiality accorded me by the American nation."

Russian occupation of Germany if the German people would overthrow its Nazi leaders and withdraw to the boundaries as established prior to the German attack on Russia in June, 1941.

This offer posed a contradiction to the "unconditional surrender" policy laid down by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill at Casablanca last January.

Although invited to the Casablanca conference, Soviet Supreme Commissar Joseph Stalin politely made his excuses, and did not attend. Likewise, in the present Quebec conference, Russia is without a representative.

Nor has Russia participated at the table in any of the Roosevelt-Churchill war strategy conferences since the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, Dec. 7, 1941.

WHY THEY HATE US

WHY do the Japanese hate us so? All the evidence indicates that they do. One recent American writer even says that whatever the outcome of this American-Japanese war, others will follow. He compares ours to the struggle between Rome and Carthage, and says that it will not end till one country or the other is completely destroyed and its soil ploughed with salt.

Americans did not feel as bitterly as that about the Japanese at the start of the war, but are getting to do so now. Stories of Japanese treachery and cruelty have caused the change. Probably similar stories are told in Japan about our troops, with like effects.

Still, every hatred, no matter how worked up by propaganda or the excitement of war, derives from some grievance. In Japan's case it seems to be the Japanese Exclusion Act of 1924, drafted by Senator Hiram Johnson of California and signed by President Coolidge. This specifically forbade the admission of Japanese. The Japanese would have accepted a quota restriction, no matter how few it admitted; but to be told that no citizen of their country could be tolerated in the United States infuriated them. The resentment has continued in their systems like a disease, ever becoming more malignant.

The Exclusion Act of 1924 has borne bitter fruit.

NOT AN OPEN CITY

IT takes more than radio declarations to make an open city. It requires the removal of all military use of such a city. This would be especially difficult in the case of Rome, which is a great railroad center. Even if Badoglio were willing to perform all the necessary motions, it is very doubtful if he would find it possible against German opposition. There are plenty of German troops still in Italy.

It begins to look as if Badoglio were playing a waiting game, not going too far with the Allies lest Germany's reckoning be too severe, but hoping that the Allies will get into Italy pretty soon and relieve his responsibility.

In any case, Italy is not to be trusted until she proves herself. She comes into court with hands none too clean. If she is willing to be good now, after having been bad so long, that will be fine. But she has got to be very good indeed and give thorough and practical evidence of the change of heart. Trying to escape just deserts by hiding behind the Pope's white cassock does not make much of a hit with the rest of the world.

Bowles, New OPA "General Manager," Knows Washington Operating Chief Has Had Price Control Experience

WASHINGTON—Although new to Washington, Chester Bowles, the newly-appointed "general manager" of embattled OPA, is well aware of the capital city's pitfalls and his experience with rationing and price control in Connecticut will stand him in good stead. Bowles did so well in the Connecticut OPA job that OPA Chief Prentiss Brown for months tried to persuade him to come to Washington. He knew the local boards thoroughly; ousted incompetent officials; conducted a sort of "school" for state OPA officials and made a weekly broadcast to the public on price and rationing matters. He answered with care a large "fan mail" from the public.

Born in Springfield, Mass., in April, 1901, Bowles is a member of a family which founded and still operates the Springfield Republican. Samuel Bowles, his grandfather, was the fighting editor of the newspaper during the Civil war. After attending Choate school and Yale, Bowles worked as a reporter on the Republican for two years and then went to New York for bigger fields to conquer. Before setting up his own advertising agency, he worked for the firm of Batten, Barton, Durstine and Osborn.

The new OPA operating chief, who made a fortune in advertising and retired at an age when most American businessmen are just reaching for success, will be the capital's miracle-man if he can do in little over two months what his predecessors have failed to accomplish in two years—make OPA acceptable, workable and understandable.

Around OPA, however, they are betting on Bowles to do the job. The energetic newcomer has no illusions about the task ahead, having spent 18 months as successful OPA administrator for Connecticut,

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

U. S. MAINTAINS HIGH MORALE

WASHINGTON—Officials of the U. S. air forces operating over Europe are maintaining a high morale among the fliers in the face of daily losses of scores of their comrades.

Official communiques report only the number of planes lost on a given flight. They fail to mention that when ten Flying Fortresses go down, 100 men go down with them.

This not only requires replacements, but also requires that the men who survive shall not brood too much over their friends.

Officials calculate the chances of survival, just as the men do, and they regulate the flights to keep those chances favorable. No flier is kept on operations for more than 25 or 30 flights, depending on the percentage of losses.

Also, officials take pains to keep the mess halls filled. If 50 men fail to return from a raid, they make sure that there will not be 50 empty chairs at mess.

A high official of the War department just back from a tour of the air fronts, reports that morale is good among the fliers.

"If you sent them out against heavy opposition to bomb a truck by the roadside," he said, "they might not be so keen about it, but these boys know the importance of their targets, and their fighting spirit is high."

One officer, a squadron leader, suffered an injury to his foot, which was put in a plaster cast. But he hobbled out of the hospital, without being discharged, and made four flights over Europe with his crew, before attendants discovered his trick and took him back to bed.

B AND C BOOKS DOWN

Some eastern motorists looking forward to more gasoline next month have a sad disappointment ahead. The OPA is planning to offset any increase in consumption. For while the value of A coupons will go up, the number of B and C coupons will go down, and the one move will offset the other.

Trimming of B and C books will be done by instructions from Washington to local boards directing that applications for these supplementary rations shall be scrutinized more carefully and the number of coupons reduced.

Reports of OPA investigators reveal that some local boards are too liberal in granting supplementary rations. This is especially true in small communities where board members know applicants personally and do not like to police their driving too sharply.

It is also true in oil producing states, where the necessity of sharp reduction has not yet been universally realized.

Thus, when you get your next B or C ration book, you may find that the board has used the scissors before passing the book on to you.

DIET AND HEALTH

Pattern Followed In Human Growth

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

GROWTH, as we pointed out yesterday, is one of the most mysterious functions of the body. Obviously it is a necessary function. We cannot forever remain the size of babies, even if we maintain a diet of pure milk.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

In other ways, because the baby would have to reproduce a smaller baby and so on until in a few generations we would be microscopic. So Nature provides for growth up to the age of maturity. But why isn't the growth steady and gradual?

The human animal grows very rapidly from birth to six months—increases size twice. Then it grows steadily but slowly for two years, so again its size is twice that of six months. Then its growth slows so as to be almost imperceptible—only a ten or fifteen per cent increase in eight or nine years.

The child of ten is about four times the size of the new born baby. Then all of a sudden at about the age of twelve growth is speeded up so that in the next five or six years the size of the individual is ten times that at birth. And then the whole darn thing stops dead and never starts again. Why? Nobody on earth has the faintest idea.

Averages of Height

If you want averages of growth in height, they can be furnished. But if, as a parent, you are going to apply this to the growth of your own children a warning is necessary. These are only averages, and an average is made by computing ten thousand individuals. Your child is as likely to fall right on the dot as one is to ten thousand.

But here are the figures. Males and females are about the same up to thirteen years. It is more accurate to do it in millimeters. (A millimeter is one-thousandth of a meter, which is 39 1/4 inches long.)

At 3 months—613
1 year—761
2 years—874
3 years—962
4 years—1039 (a little over a yard)

5 years—1109
6 years—1172
7 years—1238
8 years—1301
9 years—1359
10 years—1413
11 years—1465
12 years—1510
13 years—1567 (a little over a yard and a half)

Several General Deviations

But in recording a large number, of which this is the average, there are found deviations from the average which fall into four groups. There is first a group whose weight is heavier than the average and height about the average or somewhat below. Then there is a taller group—always exceeding the average height, constituting about 33 per cent of the whole. This individual is slender and his weight not much more than the average.

Then there is the small type, consistently at every age under the average height, constituting about 27 per cent of the entire group. The actual average constitutes about 37 per cent of the boys and 42 per cent of the girls. These differences mean quite different potentials in endurance, tendency to disease and even temperament, a subject we will discuss tomorrow.

Answer: If the osteomyelitis has been thoroughly eradicated in youth, it will not recur. There is absolutely and positively no danger of giving it to the offspring.

CHAPTER THIRTY-NINE

WHEN HER father told Karen that he realized he had been wrong about Denise in not forgiving her, in not accepting Raoul, since he was the man her sister loved, Karen knew what such admission had cost him. She knew the proud stubbornness that Denise had inherited from him, which had made it impossible for her to forgive that unforgiveness of his. But this might be the beginning of forgiveness; a beginning that really had started with Denise's sending her boy home and that had fostered this feeling in their father as his love grew for his grandson.

She said, "Why don't you write and tell Denise what you have just told me, Jim?" If such forgiveness was kept locked in his heart, it could not bring about that miracle.

"I couldn't do that!" her father protested. There had been letters from his older daughter now that her son lived in the big house, revealing letters that also had given Jim Bell more understanding and insight, but the letters had been addressed to the little boy. It was not up to a father to break the silence that still lay between him and his daughter, much as he longed to have it broken and buried forever.

Karen said, "I think you could. I know you could." She rested her smooth cheek against the back of his big hand. She still sat on the footstool at his feet in the old intimate way that always brought them close, as if she were a little girl again, seeking his advice or sympathy. Now, however, the role was reversed; she was trying to help her dad. "Pride is such a foolish thing," she added. "When it comes to the ones you love it shouldn't count, not as much as the love should, anyway. I think that if you wrote to Denise what you just told me, that perhaps you had been wrong, that you no longer hold any bitterness against her or Raoul, that you wanted to forgive and forget, well, I think—no, I'm sure, that that would make everything all right again."

"It couldn't wipe out all that has gone; that can never be again," her father reminded her sadly. Youth was too hopeful, yet that was what youth was—hope itself. Only old age, and much living, taught that the past and the marks it had left could never quite be washed away. "Still," he relented a little toward youth's argument, "if I really thought that a letter from me might help make Denise some happier, and for Buffy's sake as well, I might do it, my dear. I guess I am too old for pride, and too foolish."

"You are too big for it!" Karen claimed, laying her fresh sweet lips against his hand now for a moment before sitting up straighter again. "I hate war, darling, but that ought to be the one good to come out of it, the realization that it is ALL people who count, all love, not just any one individual. It ought to make us all big enough to put aside the smaller things."

"You seem to have learned a lot lately," Her father smiled down on her bright bent head, reaching out to stroke her hair that was so shining and golden. "Has love taught you so much wisdom, or are you growing up? You are right. I am a selfish individualist, as well as a stubborn old fool. I will write the letter to your sister."

"I knew you would," Karen said softly, raising her shining eyes to his. No, she had not learned because she was now grown up, or from love; she had learned from life, really sharing and living it as she had been doing since that day when she had awakened to the uselessness of her existence. She had learned from a young man named Martin Halliday.

"The letters Denise writes Buffy say many things between the lines," Jim Bell said. "She must have changed, too, my eldest daughter. She writes that the chauffeur has been turned into a nurse home and that she herself works night and day. So the dowry I provided to preserve the estate of Raoul's family may be bearing fruit indeed. She writes that Raoul has gone off to fight and has been twice wounded, so he must have worth-while things within himself that outnumber the small outward signs I did not like or could not understand."

"No one is ever quite what he seems," his youngest daughter said out of her new wisdom. "We ought never judge until we are certain. All we can do is believe the best. Denise writes, too, how glad she is that Buffy is so well and so content—and think what that must mean to her, dad, when she has had to shut him out of her own life, to will that he forget her and his own home for another."

Cousin Ellen had been right when she had said that a child could forget even his loved ones and adapt himself to new surroundings. So that it was Denise now who must be pitied more than the little boy.

"Maybe," Jim Bell said, although he dared not hope for so much, as he had told himself what that first news concerning his grandson had come, "she might be willing some day to come home. To see Buffy. After the war is over."

"I think that's very possible," Karen smiled up at him to show that she believed it actually was. "You must put it all into that letter—the way you feel now toward Raoul, that he would be welcome home, too, as well as Denise and their son. That's something to remember, you know, that Buffy is Raoul's child, as well as Denise's. His father must have suffered, too, because of his son. He must often think of him on the battlefield, lying wounded in hospitals. . . . maybe he wonders if he will ever see him again."

"I'll put it all in the letter," Jim Bell made these words a solemn promise. He would not delay, either; he would write that letter, this very day. How wrong he had been to have delayed so long. It was true what he had told Karen; he was a selfish, stubborn old man.

Age could learn from youth—that was true, too. "Good!" Karen said, since there were not enough words in any dictionary to say the things that crowded, with that choky feeling of tears, into her throat. She knew it was a beginning and she knew the ending would be the one they both wanted. The letter would heal the barrier that had stood between her father and her sister; it would even wipe away all the heart-ache of these years. Some day Denise would come home again—and what a happy thought that was, for Karen dearly loved her older sister; she had given her the adoration a younger child always bestows upon someone so much more lovely than she ever could hope to be; she had missed Denise with a poignant grief more bitter than death, since death is finality.

She got up from her footstool. Her father had finished his cigar and he was getting up, too, since now there was nothing more to say, or at the present on this subject. There would be more, when the answer to the letter her father would write arrived, when the time came for Buffy to return to his homeland or for his mother to come to see him.

"Ah begs your pardon, Miss Karen . . ." Brown Betsy stood in the wide doorway leading into the enormous center hall, her placid face was screwed into an agony of distress, either at an interruption, since she had not been summoned, or at some more serious trouble. "Ah has to see you all a minute. Ah has to tell you all something."

"What is it, Betsy?" Karen hoped it was not as serious as that brown face registered. She could not give in to that surge of fear whenever some small thing went wrong concerning Buffy. For it would be about the boy undoubtedly.

"It's Buffy, Miss Karen. Ah does know about that child. Ah looks everywhere for him. Ah calls and calls . . ."

"He's probably gone down to the beach, although he shouldn't, not without someone, not even by way of the tunnel," Karen could not help feeling relief that that was all that was wrong. If Buffy were temporarily missing he soon would turn up. "No'm." Betsy shook her head slowly. The distress in her face increased until it was the personification of woe. "Ah looks everywhere Ah tells you—everywhere, de beach and in de house and de grounds. Ah done calls and calls until Ah's hoarse in de throat. Ah asks everyone in de big house and all around everywhere, too. No one ain't seen dat child, Miss Karen. Dat boy he jess ain't nowhere. Buffy's gone, Miss Karen, dat's what."

"He can't be!" Karen's voice was sharp with fear she could not control. "Of course not." Her father joined her. "We'll find him—we will all look again." But there was fear in his voice and eyes, too.

WHY THEY HATE US

WHY do the Japanese hate us so? All the evidence indicates that they do. One recent American writer even says that whatever the outcome of this American-Japanese war, others will follow. He compares ours to the struggle between Rome and Carthage, and says that it will not end till one country or the other is completely destroyed and its soil ploughed with salt.

Americans did not feel as bitterly as that about the Japanese at the start of the war, but are getting to do so now. Stories of Japanese treachery and cruelty have caused the change. Probably similar stories are told in Japan about our troops, with like effects.

Still, every hatred, no matter how worked up by propaganda or the excitement of war, derives from some grievance. In Japan's case it seems to be the Japanese Exclusion Act of 1924, drafted by Senator Hiram Johnson of California and signed by President Coolidge. This specifically forbade the admission of Japanese. The Japanese would have accepted a quota restriction, no matter how few it admitted; but to be told that no citizen of their country could be tolerated in the United States infuriated them. The resentment has continued in their systems like a disease, ever becoming more malignant.

The Exclusion Act of 1924 has borne bitter fruit.

NOT AN OPEN CITY

IT takes more than radio declarations to make an open city. It requires the removal of all military use of such a city. This would be especially difficult in the case of Rome, which is a great railroad center. Even if Badoglio were willing to perform all the necessary motions, it is very doubtful if he would find it possible against German opposition. There are plenty of German troops still in Italy.

It begins to look as if Badoglio were playing a waiting game, not going too far with the Allies lest Germany's reckoning be too severe, but hoping that the Allies will get into Italy pretty soon and relieve his responsibility.

In any case, Italy is not to be trusted until she proves herself. She comes into court with hands none too clean. If she is willing to be good now, after having been bad so long, that will be fine. But she has got to be very good indeed and give thorough and practical evidence of the change of heart. Trying to escape just deserts by hiding behind the Pope's white cassock does not make much of a hit with the rest of the world.

"Mental Care Cost Is Topic" says the headline. "Officials to Consider Expansion Program." The cost of not giving mental care is so great and so obvious that it doesn't need consideration.

Bowles, New OPA "General Manager," Knows Washington | Operating Chief Has Had Price Control Experience

WASHINGTON—Although new to Washington, Chester Bowles, the newly-appointed "general manager" of embattled OPA, is well aware of the capital city's pitfalls and his experience with rationing and price control in Connecticut will stand him in good stead.

Bowles did so well in the Connecticut OPA job that OPA Chief Prentiss Brown for months tried to persuade him to come to Washington. He knew the local boards thoroughly; ousted incompetent officials; conducted a sort of "school" for state OPA officials and made a weekly broadcast to the public on price and rationing matters. He answered with care a large "fan mail" from the public.

Born in Springfield, Mass., in April, 1901, Bowles is a member of a family which founded and still operates the Springfield Republican.

Samuel Bowles, his grandfather, was the fighting editor of the newspaper during the Civil war. After attending Choate school and Yale, Bowles worked as a reporter on the Republican for two years and then went to New York for bigger fields to conquer. Before setting up his own advertising agency, he worked for the firm of Batten, Barton, Durstine and Osborne.

The new OPA operating chief, who made a fortune in advertising and retired at an age when most American businessmen are just reaching for success, will be the capital's miracle-man if he can do in little over two months what his predecessors have failed to accomplish in two years—make OPA acceptable, workable and understandable.

Around OPA, however, they are betting on Bowles to do the job. The energetic newcomer has no illusion about the task ahead, having spent 18 months as successful OPA administrator for Connecticut.

U. S. MAINTAINS HIGH MORALE

WASHINGTON—Officials of the U. S. air forces operating over Europe are maintaining a high morale among the fliers in the face of daily losses of scores of their comrades.

Official communiques report only the number of planes lost on a given flight. They fail to mention that when ten Flying Fortresses go down, 100 men go down with them.

This not only requires replacements, but also requires that the men who survive shall not brood too much over their friends.

Officials calculate the chances of survival, just as the men do, and they regulate the flights to keep those chances favorable. No flier is kept on operations for more than 25 or 30 flights, depending on the percentage of losses.

Also, officials take pains to keep the mess halls filled. If 50 men fail to return from a raid, they make sure that there will not be 50 empty chairs at mess.

A high official of the War department just back from a tour of the air fronts, reports that morale is good among the fliers.

"If you sent them out against heavy opposition to bomb a truck by the roadside," he said, "they might not be so keen about it, but these boys know the importance of their targets, and their fighting spirit is high."

One officer, a squadron leader, suffered an injury to his foot, which was put in a plaster cast. But he hobbled out of the hospital, without being discharged, and made four flights over Europe with his crew, before attendants discovered his trick and took him back to bed.

B AND C BOOKS DOWN

Some eastern motorists looking forward to more gasoline next month have a sad disappointment ahead. The OPA is planning to offset any increase in consumption. For while the value of A coupons will go up, the number of B and C coupons will go down, and the one move will offset the other.

Trimming of B and C books will be done by instructions from Washington to local boards directing that applications for these supplementary rations shall be scrutinized more carefully and the number of coupons reduced.

Reports of OPA investigators reveal that some local boards are too liberal in granting supplementary rations. This is especially true in small communities where board members know applicants personally and do not like to police their driving too sharply.

It is also true in oil producing states, where the necessity of sharp reduction has not yet been universally realized.

Thus, when you get your next B or C ration book, you may find that the board has used the scissors before passing the book on to you.

Pattern Followed In Human Growth

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

GROWTH, as we pointed out yesterday, is one of the most mysterious functions of the body. Obviously it is a necessary function. We cannot forever remain the size of babies, even if we manage to.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

In other ways, because the baby would have to reproduce a smaller baby and so on until in a few generations we would be microscopic. So Nature provides for growth up to the age of maturity. But why isn't the growth steady and gradual?

The human animal grows very rapidly from birth to six months—increases size twice. Then it grows steadily but slowly for two years, so again its size is twice that of six months. Then its growth slows so as to be almost imperceptible—only a ten or fifteen per cent increase in eight or nine years.

The child of ten is about four times the size of the new born baby. Then all of a sudden at about the age of twelve growth is speeded up so that in the next five or six years the size of the individual is ten times that at birth. And then the whole darn thing stops dead and never starts again. Why? Nobody on earth has the faintest idea.

Averages of Height

If you want averages of growth in height, they can be furnished. But if, as a parent, you are going to apply this to the growth of your own children a warning is necessary. These are only averages, and an average is made by computing ten thousand individuals. Your child is as likely to fall right on the dot as one is to ten thousand.

But here are the figures. Males and females are about the same up to thirteen years. It is more accurate to do it in millimeters. (A millimeter is one-thousandth of a meter, which is 39 1/4 inches long.)

At 3 months—613
1 year—761
2 years—874
3 years—962
4 years—1039 (a little over a yard)
5 years—1109
6 years—1172
7 years—1238
8 years—1301
9 years—1359
10 years—1413
11 years—1465
12 years—1519
13 years—1567 (a little over a yard and a half)

Several General Deviations
But in recording a large number, of which this is the average, there are found deviations from the average which fall into four groups. There is first a group whose weight is heavier than the average and height about the average or somewhat below. Then there is a taller group—always exceeding the average height, constituting about 33 per cent of the whole. This individual is slender and his weight not much more than the average.

Then there is the small type, consistently at every age under the average height, constituting about 27 per cent of the entire group. The actual average constitutes about 37 per cent of the boys and 42 per cent of the girls. These differences mean quite different potential activities for the different groups in endurance, tendency to disease and even temperament, a subject we will discuss tomorrow.

CHAPTER THIRTY-NINE

WHEN HER father told Karen that he realized he had been wrong about Denise in not forgiving her, in not accepting Raoul, since he was the man her sister loved, Karen knew what such admission had cost him. She knew the proud stubbornness that Denise had inherited from him, which had made it impossible for her to forgive that unforgiveness of his. But this might be the beginning of forgiveness; a beginning that really had started with Denise's sending her boy home and that had fostered this feeling in their father as his love grew for his grandson.

She said, "Why don't you write and tell Denise what you have just told me, Jim?" If such forgiveness was kept locked in his heart, it could not bring about that miracle. "I couldn't do that!" her father protested. There had been letters from his older daughter now that her son lived in the big house, revealing letters that also had given Jim Bell more understanding and insight, but the letters had been addressed to the little boy. It was not up to a father to break the silence that still lay between him and his daughter, much as he longed to have it broken and buried forever.

Karen said, "I think you could. I KNOW you could." She rested her smooth cheek against the back of his big hand. She still sat on the footstool at his feet in the old intimate way that always brought them close, as if she were a little girl again, seeking his advice or sympathy. Now, however, the role was reversed; she was trying to help her dad. "Fridge is such a foolish thing," she added. "When it comes to the ones you love it shouldn't count, not as much as the love should, anyway. I think that if you wrote to Denise what you just told me, that perhaps you had been wrong, that you no longer hold any bitterness against her or Raoul, that you wanted to forgive and forget, well, I think—no, I'm SURE, that that would make everything all right again."

"It couldn't wipe out all that has gone; that can never be again," her father reminded her sadly. Youth was too hopeful, yet that was what youth was—hope itself. Only old age, and much living, taught that the past and the marks it had left could never quite be washed away.

"Still," he relented a little toward youth's argument, "if I really thought that a letter from me might help make Denise some happier, and for Buffy's sake as well, I might do it, my dear. I guess I am too old for pride, and too foolish."

"You are too big for it!" Karen claimed, laying her fresh sweet lips against his hand now for a moment before sitting up straighter again. "I hate war, darling, but that ought to be the one good to come out of it, the realization that it is ALL people who count, all love, not just any one individual. It ought to make us all big enough to put aside the smaller things."

"You seem to have learned a lot later." Her father smiled down on her bright bent head, reaching out to stroke her hair that was so shining and golden. "Has love taught you so much wisdom, or are you growing up? You are right. I am a selfish individualist, as well as a stubborn old fool. I will write the letter to your sister."

"I knew you would," Karen said softly, raising her shining eyes to his. No, she had not learned because she was now grown up, or from love; she had learned from life, really sharing and living it as she had been doing since that day when she had awakened to the uselessness of her existence. She had learned from a young man named Martin Haliday.

"The letters Denise writes Buffy say many things between the lines," Jim Bell said. "She must have changed, too, my eldest daughter. She writes that the chateau has been turned into a nursing home and that she herself works night and day. So the dowry I provided to preserve the estate of Raoul's family may be bearing fruit indeed. She writes that Raoul has gone off to fight and has been twice wounded, so he must have worth-while things within himself that outnumber the small outward signs I did not like or could not understand."

"No one is ever quite what he seems," his youngest daughter said, out of her new wisdom. "We ought never judge until we are certain. All we can do is believe the best. Denise writes, too, how glad she is that Buffy is so well and so content—and think what that must mean to her, dad, when she has had to shut him out of her own life, to will that he forget her and his own home for another."

Cousin Ellen had been right when she had said that a child could forget even his loved ones and adapt himself to new surroundings. So that it was Denise now who must be pitied more than the little boy.

"Maybe," Jim Bell said, although he dared not hope so much, as he had told himself when that first news concerning his grandson had come, "she might be willing some day to come home. To see Buffy. After the war is over."

"It might be very possible," Karen smiled, up at him to show that she believed it actually was. "You must put it all into that letter—the way you feel now toward Raoul, that he would be welcome home, too, as well as Denise and their son. That's something to remember, you know, that Buffy is Raoul's child, as well as Denise's. His father must have suffered, too, because of his son. He must often think of him on the battlefield, lying wounded in hospitals. . . . Maybe he wonders if he will ever see him again."

"I'll put it all in the letter," Jim Bell made these words a solemn promise. He would not delay, either; he would write that letter this very day. How wrong he had been to have delayed so long. It was true what he had told Karen; he was a selfish, stubborn old man.

ASHVILLE

The sixtieth annual Notheime reunion was held Sunday at Ashville Community Park with 65 friends and relatives present.

After a delightful dinner served on the tables in the shelter house, a short business meeting was called by the president, Mrs. Dema Winters.

There are 10 sons in the relationship that have answered their country's call.

It was decided to hold the reunion again next year at the same place.

Mrs. Wilma Thomas of Circleville was chosen as president, Mrs. Fannie Rector, of Ashville, vice president and Mrs. Christine Marion, secretary-treasurer.

A short program was given and the rest of the afternoon was spent in playing horseshoe and visiting.

Where "Woody" Oday is boss,

Ashville.

This is the week, the one just before candidate filing time, next week, Thursday, September 2.

Locally, the village candidates, as it appears now, will have to be drafted for the several offices to be filled; "nobody wants nothing", it appears. But one petition is being circulated, that for village clerk, by Mrs. Guy Leatherwood and who desires the office for herself, Elmer Malone, present Justice of the Peace for the local township, will be a candidate for the place.

Ben Vause, one of the present township trustees and whose time of holding the office expires with January 1 next, will not be a candidate, so he told us.

The local township trustee vacancy caused by the death of Thomas Purcell has been filled by Justice Elmer Malone by the appointment of David Dunnick, well known farmer northwest of town. This appointment is the third one of the kind made by Squire Malone since he has been Justice. The first one was Sherman J. Hoover whose appointment was to fill the place of Dick Hedges who resigned the trusteeship to become a state highway official. The second was the naming of Ben Vause to fill the vacancy caused by trustee Russell Reid removing from the township.

An old $3 bill issued by the bank of Wooster under date of 1846, is seen in the window of the Ashville Bank. It is the property of Charles Fortner.

The public sale of the chattels of the late E. A. Snyder, conducted by Ellis Snyder, the son and administrator, Saturday afternoon at the Snyder home on West Main street, was very largely attended and prices ruled "fair to high" according to what a dozen or more of those who attended the auction told us.

BREWS REMAIN GAME AND HALF ABOVE BIRDIES

By International News Service

The leadership in the American Association remained unchanged today, with Milwaukee still 1 1/2 games ahead of Columbus and the latter a like distance in front of Indianapolis, as all three leaders split Sunday twin bills.

In fact, only St. Paul was able to win a double-feature, and the win, by 2-1 and 5-0 scores over the Louisville Colonels, lifted them from the basement by a bare two percentage points.

Good hurling paid off for the Saints as Rube Melton, in his second straight victory since joining the team, hurled five-hit ball in the opener and Otho Nitcholas pitched a four-hit shut-out in the nightcap. The loss dumped the Colonels out of the first division by a single percentage point.

Milwaukee slapped out 21 hits to take a 10-inning contest from Toledo, 8-7, but Fred Sanford held them to five hits as the Mudhens took the nightcap, 7-1.

A good job of scattering 11 hits by Ted Wilks gave Columbus a 5-3 victory over Kansas City, but the Blues came back behind left-hander Johnny Johnson, who allowed only three bingles, to take the 11-1 nightcap. The Blues slammed Bill Beckman all over the lot to count eight tallies in the second stanza alone.

Minneapolis snapped its five-game losing streak and set a new league record for the season as the Millers won the nightcap from Indianapolis, 17-5. In the fourth inning the Millers counted 12 runs, beating the previous high by three. The Indians won the opener, 6-5, thanks to a four-run seventh.

REDSKINS, STARS END SCRIMMAGES FOR BIG BATTLE

CHICAGO, Aug. 23 — The champion Washington Redskins and the collegiate all-stars both let upon scrimmage today and will coast with only light practice until their football game Wednesday night at Dwyer stadium, Evanston, Ill.

The Redskins were heartened by the arrival of holdout Andy Farkas, star fullback, who signed a contract after expressing willingness to submit to the $200 weekly fine for his four weeks of absence from the lineup. The money will be divided among his teammates.

Farkas has been working out with the University of Maryland football squad and appeared in excellent condition. He will alternate with Bob Seymour in the fullback spot.

Sammy Baugh has been favoring his injured back and took it easy in the 90-minute drill under the lights last night. It was intimated he would do little kicking in the game, limiting himself to the passing department.

Head Coach Harry Stuhldreher of the collegians expressed skepticism of Baugh's injuries and suggested that in the game everyone would discover that Sammy had "miraculously recovered."

The college men lost the services of Bob Penaluna, Iowa guard, and Joe Wolf, North Carolina tackle, the former from a back injury and the latter from a twisted knee.

20,000 TO SEE FRITZIE ZIVIC, MONTY TANGLE

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 23—An estimated crowd of 20,000 was expected to invade Shibe Park tonight to see Lightweight Champion Bob Montgomery tangle in a ten-round non-title bout with Fritz Zivic, one-time king of the welterweights. In spite of the fact that Montgomery will spot nearly nine pounds to the Pittsburgher, he ruled a 9 to 5 favorite in the betting odds. Zivic has predicted he'll finish the Philadelphia Negro "in six or maybe seven rounds" and has backed the boast with a bet of $500 against $1,200 that he'll win.

The battle marks Montgomery's first appearance in a hometown ring since he captured the title by conquering Beau Jack.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

 plunging the world into another war 20 years hence.

Based on years of studying Bismarck, Hindenburg and the Kaiser, the German historian urged that there be a strong army of occupation by all the United Nations for at least five years.

"The German people should know for the first time in 130 years," he said, "what a foreign authority looks like. Only thus can they be brought to understand that they have been defeated."

Ludwig pointed out that German militarism always had come from Prussia, while Germany's culture had come from the South and West. Therefore he proposed splitting Germany up into two states: (1) Prussia, small and isolated; and (2) Bavaria, Saxony, and the smaller Catholic German states which are not militaristic and which would be joined with Austria. This would put the Catholics in one country and the Lutheran Prussians in another.

NO "POOR MISGUIDED" GERMANS

"Leave to the Germans all that other nations have," Ludwig recommended, "but take away their weapons, supervise their education, and give them political guardianship. If you do not, and if you speak of the 'poor misguided German people,' then 20 years from now your sons will be fighting another war against them."

"What I fear," continued Ludwig, "is that on the day after the death of Hitler, the Junkers, the generals will kowtow to you and say, 'We love Americans. Come, let us be brothers again.' I fear that some of you will say, 'Now let us make peace. They are good people, these Germans.'"

"But they are no. They are not one whit better than the Hitler. They merely have better manners," Ludwig declared.

Note: Ludwig paid tribute privately to the excellent job the army was doing at its School for Military Government. He said he had seldom met such an intelligent, progressive group of men, with such a grasp on the world's future problems.

KING AND AIRPOWER

The Washington Post has been engaged in an argument with the Navy and Admiral Ernest King, commander-of-the-fleet, over whether he is really for airpower or still puts his faith in the big battleship.

The Post repeated from William Bradford Huie's book, "The Fight for Air Power," a quotation from King that "Army aviation should end at the shore-line." Admiral King promptly replied that he never made such a statement.

Maybe he didn't but... After the battle of Midway, Fortune Magazine was preparing an article on airpower, and the proof sheets were sent to Admiral King for perusal. When they came back, he had written marginal notes in his own handwriting deprecating the achievements of Army airplanes at Midway.

Where the manuscript said that Army planes bombed Japan ships, the doughty Admiral had pencilled "Bombed AT Japan ships." Then followed the initials "E.J.K."

Note: It was largely censored at the time, but before Pearl Harbor, Army planes were not permitted to fly more than 100 miles on patrol duty over the water. For weeks the Army argued that long-range Army planes, faster and further-flying than the Navy's, should keep a lookout for a surprise Jap attack. Major General Bob Olds among others, even made a chart showing how a Jap carrier could sneak in at night after Navy planes had finished their rounds, without the Navy being able to detect it. But Admiral King's Navy remained adamant. Army planes, they said, must stick to the shore.

Phillies Help Redlegs Set New Scoring Mark

By John Cashman

NEW YORK, Aug. 23 — They say in Philadelphia that if the Phillies don't break records themselves, they will certainly assist their competitors to do so. And they're right.

The Phillies, in gentlemanly fashion, did their utmost yesterday to assist the Cincinnati Reds to the new 1943 National league scoring record by bowing 20 to 6, in the nightcap of a doubleheader.

The Phillies were not nearly so gallant in the opener, since it required some effort for the Reds to acquire a 4 to 3 victory. In the nightcap, however, five young Philadelphians paraded to the mound and, after doing everything but asking the batters what they would have, dished up delectable offerings of blooper balls and piff-puff curves that were good for three triples, six doubles and a homer by Eric Tipton, 22 hits in all. Every starting member of the Reds got at least one hit and scored at least one run.

The names of the second-game Philadelphia pitchers will be withheld, by request of their parents.

The New York Giants also obliged the Chicago Cubs in raising their total of games lost to 74 against 52 wins, by blowing both ends of a doubleheader, 6 to 2 and 4 to 3. Claude Passeau held the Giants to six hits in the opener, while his clubmates trampled on three Giant twirlers in 13 safeties. It took four Cub pitchers to hold down the Giants in the nightcap, however, after the New Yorkers scored a pair of runs in the eighth frame and threatened in the ninth.

Dodgers Clout

The Brooklyn Dodgers netted four homers for the day as they trampled the Pittsburgh Pirates in both halves of a twin bill, 6 to 1 and 8 to 1. Bobby Bragan, Augie Galan, Howard Schultz and Albie Glossop each connected for the circuit. Ed Head allowed but five hits in the first game and Rookie Rex Barney limited the Pirates to seven in the nightcap.

The St. Louis Cardinals gave the Braves two handy thrashings, 6 to 1 and 5 to 1, for a record of 12 straight victories and 13 triumphs in 15 starts against the Braves. Al Brazle pitched six-hit ball in the opener and Harry Gumbert and Brecheen allowed five safeties in the afterpiece.

Moving over to the American league, where they are not so polite, the Detroit Tigers exploited 10 New York Yankee errors to whip the Gothamites, 12 to 0 and 8 to 3. The twin victories moved the Tigers into second place. Seven Yankee errors and 18 Detroit hits featured the first game, and Tommy Bridges won the nightcap by limiting the Yankees to seven hits.

The Washington Senators and the St. Louis Browns split a twin bill, the Browns taking the first game, 8 to 5, then dropping the nightcap, 4 to 2, in ten innings. George Case belted four hits in the afterpiece, including a triple and two doubles, doubled home the winning run in the tenth.

Sox Gain Pair

And again Philadelphia lends a helping hand. This time the Chicago White Sox were the beneficiaries as the Philadelphia Athletics handed them two victories, 5 to 2 and 3 to 2. Tony Cuccinello won the nightcap with a ninth-inning homer that broke a 2-all deadlock. Edgar Smith turned in a six-hit performance in making the first game his eighth victory of the season.

The Cleveland Indians grabbed both ends of a twin bill with the Boston Red Sox, 6 to 0 and 7 to 6 in 13 innings. Jack Salveson pitched a magnificent two-hit game in the opener. The nightcap was won on Oris Hockett's single with the bases loaded.

FORTMANN RETURNS

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 23 — Dr. Danny Fortmann, 210-pound all-league guard, has decided to play one more season of professional football with the Chicago Bears. Just before entraining for the Windy City, Fortmann said today he would keep his post as an interne in a Pittsburgh hospital while playing for the Bears on week ends.

Though Atlantic waters are pretty chilly, the U-boats seem to be in plenty of hot water.

Former Yank Outfielder Wins $1,000 Bond And Helps Boost Fund

By Leo Fischer

CHICAGO, Aug. 23 — Sammy

Byrd, quiet-spoken 35-year-old native of Georgia who decided that competitive golf promised a better future than big league baseball, today held his first major title since making the switch from one sport to the other six years ago.

Striking four brilliant rounds for an aggregate score of 277—seven under par—Sammy won the Chicago Victory National championship meet at the Beverly Country Club by almost as wide a margin as his former Yankee teammates are accustomed to cop American league flags.

When the last of the stellar field of 41 top pros and amateurs had sunk their final putts last night, Byrd, who represents the Merion golf club of Ardmore, Pa., showed a five-stroke advantage over Craig Wood, current U. S. Open champion, who finished in second place.

One behind Wood were a couple of military men—Sgt. Jim Turnesa of Staten Island, N. Y., and Pvt. Chick Harbert of Battle Creek, Mich., and Camp Grant. One stroke still farther back was none other than the pre-tourney favorite, Byron Nelson of Toledo.

Byrd's victory was tremendously popular with the huge gallery, large enough to insure a neat profit for the Wounded War Veterans' Fund, beneficiary of the meet. Scarcely noticed in the pre-tourney speculation, he captured the fancy of the fans by winning the pro-amateur preliminary as a partner of Bob Cochran of St. Louis and continued to hold the crowd as the Victory National reached its climax.

Byrd rang up a 68 the opening day, came back Saturday with a 67, faltered slightly yesterday morning with a one-over-par 72, and finished with a steady 70.

He had three birdies in the morning round—all on the lengthy par-5 holes—and another trio after lunch, this time on the sixth, seventh and eighth. He made these in 2, 4, and 3, just four strokes less than it took him to negotiate the same trip in the morning play.

Byrd received a $1,000 War Bond for his victory. Next to his spectacular showing, the main story of the tourney was the explosion which marked Byron Nelson's last round. Regarded as perhaps the best shot-maker in the game today, he had plenty of them—and not all good by any means.

Nelson's troubles began in the morning round where he had the unusual distinction of making seven birdies and yet finishing one over par.

On the fifth he got a taste of what was to come when his drive landed smack up against a fence, out of bounds by a couple inches. He had to drive over and before he sank the ball, the score card showed a big six for him.

He slammed into the woods on the 590-yard eleventh, lost four strokes getting out and finally wound up with an 8, practically a museum piece on a card of his.

Other leading scorers were Jimmy Demaret, Detroit, and Ky Laffoon, Tulsa, 285; Lloyd Mangrum, Los Angeles, 290; Jim Foulis, Ruth Lake, Ill., and Jim Ferrier, Maywood, Ill., 291, and Buck White, Greenwood, Miss., Lieut. Lawson Little, Hutchinson, Kas., Johnny Revolta, Evanston, Ill., and Harry Cooper, Minneapolis, 293.

BREWS REMAIN GAME AND HALF ABOVE BIRDIES

By International News Service

The leadership in the American Association remained unchanged today, with Milwaukee still 1 1/2 games ahead of Columbus and the latter a like distance in front of Indianapolis, as all three leaders split Sunday twin bills.

In fact, only St. Paul was able to win a double-header, and the win, by 2-1 and 5-0 scores over the Louisville Colonels, lifted them from the basement by a bare two percentage points.

Good hurling paid off for the Saints as Rube Melton, in his second straight victory since joining the team, hurled five-hit ball in the opener and Otho Nitcholes pitched a four-hit shut-out in the nightcap. The loss dumped the Colonels out of the first division by a single percentage point.

Milwaukee slapped out 21 hits to take a 10-inning contest from Toledo, 8-7, but Fred Sanford held them to five hits as the Mudhens took the nightcap, 7-1.

A good job of scattering 11 hits by Ted Wilks gave Columbus a 5-3 victory over Kansas City, but the Blues came back behind left-hander Johnny Johnson, who allowed only three bingles, to take the 11-1 nightcap. The Blues slammed Bill Beckman all over the lot to count eight tallies in the second stanza alone.

Minneapolis snapped its five-game losing streak and set a new league record for the season as the Millers won the nightcap from Indianapolis, 17-5. In the fourth inning the Millers counted 12 runs, beating the previous high by three. The Indians won the opener, 6-5, thanks to a four-run seventh.

REDSKINS, STARS END SCRIMMAGES FOR BIG BATTLE

CHICAGO, Aug. 23 — The champion Washington Redskins and the collegiate all-stars both let upon scrimmage today and will coast with only light practice until their football game Wednesday night at Dwyer stadium, Evanston, Ill.

The Redskins were heartened by the arrival of holdout Andy Farkas, star fullback, who signed a contract after expressing willingness to submit to the $200 weekly fine for his four weeks of absence from the lineup. The money will be divided among his teammates.

Farkas has been working out with the University of Maryland football squad and appeared in excellent condition. He will alternate with Bob Seymour in the fullback spot.

Sammy Baugh has been favoring his injured back and took it easy in the 90-minute drill under the lights last night. It was intimated he would do little kicking in the game, limiting himself to the passing department.

Head Coach Harry Stuhldreher of the collegians expressed skepticism of Baugh's injuries and suggested that in the game everyone would discover that Sammy had "miraculously recovered."

The college men lost the services of Bob Penaluna, Iowa guard, and Joe Wolf, North Carolina tackle, the former from a back injury and the latter from a twisted knee.

20,000 TO SEE FRITZIE ZIVIC, MONTY TANGLE

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 23—An estimated crowd of 20,000 was expected to invade Shibe Park tonight to see Lightweight Champion Bob Montgomery tangle in a ten-round non-title bout with Fritz Zivic, one-time king of the welterweights. In spite of the fact that Montgomery will spot nearly nine pounds to the Pittsburgher, he ruled a 9 to 5 favorite in the betting odds. Zivic has predicted he'll finish the Philadelphia Negro "in six or maybe seven rounds" and has backed the boast with a bet of $500 against $1,200 that he'll win.

The battle marks Montgomery's first appearance in a hometown ring since he captured the title by conquering Beau Jack.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

plunging the world into another war 20 years hence.

Based on years of studying Bismarck, Hindenburg and the Kaiser, the German historian urged that there be a strong army of occupation by all the United Nations for at least five years.

"The German people should know for the first time in 130 years," he said, "what a foreign authority looks like. Only thus can they be brought to understand that they have been defeated."

Ludwig pointed out that German militarism always had come from Prussia, while Germany's culture had come from the South and West. Therefore he proposed splitting Germany up into two states: (1) Prussia, small and isolated; and (2) Bavaria, Saxony, and the smaller Catholic German states which are not militaristic and which would be joined with Austria. This would put the Catholics in one country and the Lutheran Prussians in another.

NO "POOR MISGUIDED" GERMANS

"Leave to the Germans all that other nations have," Ludwig recommended, "but take away their weapons, supervise their education, and give them political guardianship. If you do not, and if you speak of the 'poor misguided German people,' then 20 years from now your sons will be fighting another war against them."

"What I fear," continued Ludwig, "is that on the day after the death of Hitler, the Junkers, the generals will kowtow to you and say, 'We love Americans. Come, let us be brothers again.' I fear that some of you will say, 'Now let us make peace. They are good people, these generals.'"

"But they are no. They are not one whit better than the Hitler."

Ludwig declared.

Private Ludwig paid tribute to the excellent job the army was doing at its School for Military Government. He said he had seldom met such an intelligent, progressive group of men, with such a grasp on the world's future problems.

KING AND AIRPOWER

The Washington Post has been engaged in an argument with the Navy and Admiral Ernest King, commander-of-the-fleet, over whether he is really for airpower or still puts his faith in the big battleship.

The Post repeated from William Bradford Huie's book, "The Fight for Air Power," a quotation from King that "Army aviation should end at the shore-line." Admiral King promptly replied that he never made such a statement.

Maybe he didn't. But after the battle of Midway, Fortune Magazine was preparing an article on airpower, and the proof sheets were sent to Admiral King for perusal. When they came back, he had written marginal notes in his own handwriting deprecating the achievements of Army airplanes at Midway.

Where the manuscript said that Army planes bombed Japan, the doughty Admiral had pencilled "Bombed AT Japan ships." Then followed the initials "E.J.K."

Note: It was largely censored at the time, but before Pearl Harbor, Army planes were not permitted to fly more than 100 miles on patrol duty over the water. For weeks the Army argued that long-range Army planes, faster and further-flying than the Navy's, should keep a lookout for a surprise Japan attack. Major General Bob Olds among others, even made a chart showing how a Japan carrier could sneak in at night after Navy planes had finished their rounds, without the Navy being able to detect it. But Admiral King's Navy remained adamant. Army planes, they said, must stick to the shore.

All patriotic Americans wear the Victory shirt. It's any kind—with the sleeves rolled up.

DINAH SHORE

Dinah Shore, the nation's No. 1 songstress of sweet swing and newest addition to the Hollywood star firmament, has been signed for a guest appearance on the premiere program of Radio Corporation of America's full-hour show "What's New?" on Saturday, September 4, at 7 p. m. over the blue network. Miss Shore will also make several appearances on the program during the year.

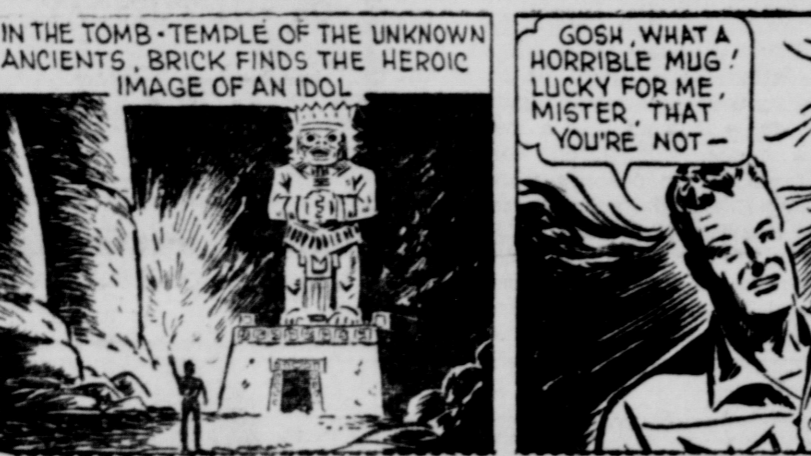

Dinah, who is one of the most popular Victor recording artists, will soon be seen in "Thank Your Lucky Stars," her first movie. However, she has not confined her debuts to the films. This last summer found the sultry-voiced singer in a new radio role, heading the summer replacement show for Edgar Bergen. In addition to holding the singing spotlight of the "Paul Whiteman Presents" program, Dinah picked up on the repartee tossed to her by the guest comedians, as well as "Pops" Whiteman and veteran m.c. man, Bill Goodwin. The duet she sang with Bing Crosby on a medley of "Porgy and Bess" songs is already acclaimed as the high spot of the Summer season.

County AAA Gets Preview of 1944 Agricultural Program

Commodity Loans Again To Be Available To Producers

A preview of Uncle Sam's 1944 agricultural program during which great production of food for the nation's armed forces, for its allies, for lend-lease purposes and to alleviate suffering in lands wrested from the axis was given Monday to the Pickaway county Agricultural Adjustment Agency by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Plans are virtually completed for financing the 1944 farm and food programs, the department declared, the entire program awaiting the return of congress.

Basically, the program prepared for submission to congress when it returns in mid-September provides for removal of government restrictions on production, provides support prices and moderate use of subsidies.

Loans Available

The department informed the Pickaway county AAA that there is little doubt that commodity loans will be available in 1944, although the loan appropriation ends January 1, 1944, and continuance is dependent on congressional action.

There will be no crop insurance on wheat in 1944 unless congress reinstates the program with a new insurance law.

Another assignment is being planned for the AAA office during the next crop year, that of providing service to farmers of the county in order to keep production rolling. This will be one of the major jobs of the county office for 1944, the AAA was informed, definite methods of providing assistance to be worked out later.

Among provisions of the 1944 program outlined to the AAA office include the following:

No Allotment Payments

There will be no allotment payments in 1944, only production practice payments being carried out.

Contour farming will be given much attention by various USDA offices in 1944.

Goals for war crops will be announced later in the fall.

The county's 1944 wheat goal will be about the same as for 1943.

The production practice program will be made to fit individual counties as nearly as possible.

A further coordination of all USDA programs will be made in 1944.

At the same time that the 1944 program outline was received the Pickaway county AAA was informed that a revision had been made in the 1943 farm production adjustment allowance.

Payment for corn production will be 3.0 cents a bushel times the normal yield per acre for the farm, times each acre in the corn allotment. The price previously announced by the government was 3.6 cents.

The wheat price is also revised to 8.5 cents from a previously announced 9.2 cents per bushel times the normal yield per acre of wheat for the farm times each acre in the wheat acreage allotment.

There is no penalty for exceeding the corn allotment or wheat allotment this year.

PLANS COMPLETE FOR CONGRESSMAN'S TALK

Plans have been completed by the Chamber of Commerce for the visit of Congressman Walter D. Brehm of Logan to Circleville Friday at 7 p. m. when the congressman will address a group of community leaders, business men and farmers on national and local problems in Pickaway Arms. The congressman's address will follow a dinner to be served in Pickaway Arms.

Reservations are being accepted by Mack Parrett, C. of C. secretary.

New Plastic Ration Tokens To Appear Here Before First Of Year

Housewives of Circleville and Pickaway county, as well as those throughout the nation, will start using new ration tokens, to be made of plastic, probably before January 1, 1944, and thus help save Uncle Sam millions of dollars in paper and printing costs.

A spokesman for the OPA said in Washington Monday that use of the lightweight, quarter-size red and blue tokens, however, will not exclude use of the present paper stamps, but instead will be used only as "change" for the point coupons now in effect.

Revealing that bids will be taken for manufacture of the tokens within a week or 10 days, the OPA man asserted that "unless something unforeseen happens," the nation soon will be using plastic tokens at the corner grocery to simplify the present rationing system.

Big Printing Bill

Right now, it costs the government about $5,000,000 to print and distribute one ration book, he said. Under the new system, for example, only four red stamps will be validated per ration period—each worth 15 points—compared with 16 stamps per period under the present program, causing an enormous cut in paper use.

When the token system goes into use, a new ration book will last 96 weeks—or nearly two years—instead of only about 20 weeks as they do now. In other words, the token-coupon system will make ration books last five times as long and save Uncle Sam about $25,000,000 over the same period of time in paper, labor and printing costs.

The tokens will be blue and red in color. For each color there will be two tokens—the larger one the size of a quarter and worth five points, and the smaller the size of a nickel and worth one point.

It will be the first time "hard cash" has entered the U. S. ration program, the spokesman explained, with the tokens to be issued through the Federal Reserve system to banks participating in the rationing system.

Tokens From Banks

Retailers will secure their tokens from the banks by exchanging ration currency and give them out to the consumer as change for ration stamps.

First time the housewife sees the new token will be at her retail grocery store or butcher shop, the spokesman said.

Under present OPA plans, it is expected that four stamps will be validated at a time when the new program gets under way. However, it is possible that only one red stamp can be validated at a time, depending on the meat situation, he pointed out.

The spokesman made it clear that contrary to a popular misconception, the use of tokens will be only supplemental—to reduce the use of stamps but not to eliminate them.

With 4,000,000,000 ration stamps now in use every month, he estimated that use of tokens will reduce "conservatively speaking" by 75 percent the amount of paper in circulation.

Short On Paper

If a new book were required immediately, he said, it would take from five to seven months to get it completed, due to paper, labor and machinery shortages.

That's one reason why plastic comes into the picture.

Another unique feature of the token system is this—when the program becomes effective there will be no expiration dates for ration stamps. A housewife can save them until they are spent and they'll still be good.

For the consumer, the OPA lists these decided advantages under the new system:

(1) Tokens are easy to handle and easy to count.

(2) Making change at the counter will be quicker and less difficult than it is now.

(3) Tokens will enable more members of the family to do the buying. Husbands and children can take tokens to the store for a simpler transaction—and won't have to worry about taking the book with them.

(4) Housewives will get through the grocery "line" in record time and won't be forced to fumble for stamps of certain denominations. All blue stamps, for example, will be worth the same—12 points.

The retailer and wholesaler, meanwhile, will be saved long hours of sorting stamps into point-value piles—they'll all be worth the same. Retailers and wholesalers also will save time in handling customers.

And, OPA declares, the new red and blue tokens will be extremely difficult to counterfeit as to color and material content.

U. S. LIQUIDATES SCIOTO FARMS RURAL PROJECT

Scioto Farms Rural Resettlement project is being liquidated by the government. Present tenants were given an opportunity to buy properties on which they live and the farms have started to move into private ownership.

A. L. Sorensen, state Farm Security administrator, said Monday that about 30 of 107 tenant farmers in the project district have made or are making arrangements to buy the government properties. Some of the men making purchases are farmers who have been on the land since the project was started six years ago.

There are 7,416 acres in the resettlement area, in Pickaway, Ross, Madison and Fayette counties.

Cornell Copeland, chief of the Pickaway-Fayette county area, said that several farmers in these two counties have practically completed plans for purchases. Others are working on financial arrangements, he said.

Many transfers of title are expected to be completed in the four-county area before the first of the year.

Kingston 4-H Club To Hold Victory Garden Show Friday, Saturday

Kingston 4-H club boys and girls, proud owners of one of the finest Victory Gardens in Ohio, will conduct a Victory Garden show next Friday and Saturday in the village. Loring E. Hill, one of the community's leaders, who has worked with the boys and girls all Spring and Summer in preparing the garden and now in canning its products, said the Victory Garden show should be of interest to all persons in Pickaway and Ross counties.

In a single day's canning last week boys of the club put up 140 quarts of chard, beans, corn, beets, carrots, onions and other vegetables. Mr. Hill said the boys' work overshadowed canning efforts to date of girls of the club.

However, both boys and girls have been doing a grand job in the Victory Garden which covers five and one-half acres.

In addition to plans for their Victory Garden show the 4-H club members are planning to have a booth at the Ross county Farmers' Day also being held this week in Chillicothe. Much of the food they have canned will be displayed there.

Loans Available

The department informed the Pickaway county AAA that there is little doubt that commodity loans will be available in 1944, although the loan appropriation ends January 1, 1944, and continuance is dependent on congressional action.

There will be no crop insurance on wheat in 1944 unless congress reinstates the program with a new insurance law.

Another assignment is being planned for the AAA office during the next crop year, that of providing service to farmers of the county in order to keep production rolling. This will be one of the major jobs of the county office for 1944, the AAA was informed, definite methods of providing assistance to be worked out later.

Among provisions of the 1944 program outlined to the AAA office include the following:

No Allotment Payments

There will be no allotment payments in 1944, only production practice payments being carried out.

Contour farming will be given much attention by various USDA offices in 1944.

Goals for war crops will be announced later in the fall.

The county's 1944 wheat goal will be about the same as for 1943.

The production practice program will be made to fit individual counties as nearly as possible.

A further coordination of all USDA programs will be made in 1944.

At the same time that the 1944 program outline was received the Pickaway county AAA was informed that a revision had been made in the 1943 farm production adjustment allowance.

Payment for corn production will be 3.0 cents a bushel times the normal yield per acre for the farm, times each acre in the corn allotment. The price previously announced by the government was 3.6 cents.

The wheat price is also revised to 8.5 cents from a previously announced 9.2 cents per bushel times the normal yield per acre of wheat for the farm times each acre in the wheat acreage allotment.

There is no penalty for exceeding the corn allotment or wheat allotment this year.

New Plastic Ration Tokens To Appear Here Before First Of Year

Housewives of Circleville and Pickaway county, as well as those throughout the nation, will start using new ration tokens, to be made of plastic, probably before January 1, 1944, and thus help save Uncle Sam millions of dollars in paper and printing costs.

A spokesman for the OPA said in Washington Monday that use of the lightweight, quarter-size red and blue tokens, however, will not exclude use of the present paper stamps, but instead will be used only as "change" for the point coupons now in effect.

Revealing that bids will be taken for manufacture of the tokens within a week or 10 days, the OPA man asserted that "unless something unforeseen happens," the nation soon will be using plastic tokens at the corner grocery to simplify the present rationing system.

Big Printing Bill

Right now, it costs the government about $5,000,000 to print and distribute one ration book, he said. Under the new system, for example, only four red stamps will be validated per ration period—each worth 15 points—compared with 16 stamps per period under the present program, causing an enormous cut in paper use.

When the token system goes into use, a new ration book will last 96 weeks — or nearly two years—instead of only about 20 weeks as they do now. In other words, the token-coupon system will make ration books last five times as long and save Uncle Sam about $25,000,000 over the same period of time in paper, labor and printing costs.

The tokens will be blue and red in color. For each color there will be two tokens—the larger one the size of a quarter and worth five points, and the smaller the size of a nickel and worth one point.

It will be the first time "hard cash" has entered the U. S. ration program, the spokesman explained, with the tokens to be issued through the Federal Reserve system to banks participating in the rationing system.

Tokens From Banks

Retailers will secure their tokens from the banks by exchanging ration currency and give them out to the consumer as change for ration stamps.

First time the housewife sees the new token will be at her retail grocery store or butcher shop, the spokesman said.

Under present OPA plans, it is expected that four stamps will be validated at a time when the new program gets under way. However, it is possible that only one red stamp can be validated at a time, depending on the meat situation, he pointed out.

The spokesman made it clear that contrary to a popular misconception, the use of tokens will be only supplemental—to reduce the use of stamps but not to eliminate them.

With 4,000,000,000 ration stamps now in use every month, he estimated that use of tokens will reduce "conservatively speaking" by 75 percent the amount of paper in circulation.

Short On Paper

If a new book were required immediately, he said, it would take from five to seven months to get it completed, due to paper, labor and machinery shortages.

That's one reason why plastic comes into the picture.

Another unique feature of the token system is this—when the program becomes effective there will be no expiration dates for ration stamps. A housewife can save them until they are spent and they'll still be good.

For the consumer, the OPA lists these decided advantages under the new system:

(1) Tokens are easy to handle and easy to count.

(2) Making change at the counter will be quicker and less difficult than it is now.

(3) Tokens will enable more members of the family to do the buying. Husbands and children can take tokens to the store for a simpler transaction—and won't have to worry about taking the book with them.

(4) Housewives will get through the grocery "line" in record time and won't be forced to fumble for stamps of certain denominations. All blue stamps, for example, will be worth the same—12 points.

The retailer and wholesaler, meanwhile, will be saved long hours of sorting stamps into point-value piles—they'll all be worth the same. Retailers and wholesalers also will save time in handling customers.

And, OPA declares, the new red and blue tokens will be extremely difficult to counterfeit as to color and material content.

U. S. LIQUIDATES SCIOTO FARMS RURAL PROJECT

Scioto Farms Rural Resettlement project is being liquidated by the government. Present tenants were given an opportunity to buy properties on which they live and the farms have started to move into private ownership.

A. L. Sorensen, state Farm Security administrator, said Monday that about 30 of 107 tenant farmers in the project district have made or are making arrangements to buy the government properties. Some of the men making purchases are farmers who have been on the land since the project was started six years ago.

There are 7,416 acres in the resettlement area, in Pickaway, Ross, Madison and Fayette counties.

Cornell Copeland, chief of the Pickaway-Fayette county area, said that several farmers in these two counties have practically completed plans for purchases. Others are working on financial arrangements, he said.

Many transfers of title are expected to be completed in the four-county area before the first of the year.
